

Hogwarts Buys Brooms

A complete run of EdBid on the live test site: a school onboards, posts a quick quote with approval, a freelancer and an LLC submit sealed bids, the school awards, both sides e-sign the contract, the school pays, and EdBid collects 1%. Then a student club reuses the notice to buy its own.

How EdBid Works

- Schools post RFPs, bids, and quick quotes. A second staff member approves them before they go public.
- Vendors register once, upload a W-9 and insurance certificate, and get verification badges.
- Bids stay sealed. Nobody, including EdBid, can see amounts until the deadline passes.
- The school awards and signs its own contract. Your tax form is shared only with the school that awards you.
- You get paid, then pay 1%. Schools that pay slowly show it on their public profile.

1. SCOPE. Vendor will provide the goods and services described in notice HOG-QQ-2026-001, "Quidditch Pitch: 40 Replacement Racing Brooms", as published on EdBid (version 3), and in Vendor's bid, including: 40 hand-shaped ash brooms, $225 each, plus $430 delivery by hippogriff cart. 2-year repair warranty. The notice and the bid are part of this Agreement. If they conflict, this Agreement controls, then the notice, then the bid.

McGonagall adds a student club

Departments and student clubs become their own buying units. Their notices say who's buying, and each unit has its own page in the directory.

edbid.vercel.app

Departments & student clubs

Give each department or club its own buying unit. Scope its staff or student officers to it above: they can post only for that unit, and your approval threshold still applies. Notices show which department or club is buying.

A student officer gets purchasing-agent rights for the club only. He can post for the Quidditch team but not for the whole school. Anything over Hogwarts' $10,000 threshold still goes to McGonagall.

Reposting a recurring purchase takes a minute.

The screenshot shows the EdBid website interface. At the top, there's a browser address bar with 'edbid.vercel.app'. Below it, a dark blue header contains the EdBid logo and navigation links: Home, Search, Directory, Data Services, and Help. A yellow banner below the header contains a pilot program announcement. The main content area is titled 'Post an Opportunity' and includes instructions on publishing or saving a draft. Below this, there's a section 'Start from a template' with a dropdown menu currently showing 'Blank notice'. Further down, a section titled '1. Notice Type and ID' contains three form fields: 'Posting office' (with 'Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry · Office of the Bursar' selected), 'Notice type' (with 'Quick Quote' selected), and 'Notice ID' (with a placeholder text 'Your institution's solicitation number, like RB-IFB-2026-07').
